A Bold Future

We are on the precipice of great things, friends.

Weathering the last two years has been tough, I am not going to lie. And yet, through the turbulence Greenbelt has stood strong. Together with staff, volunteers and donors, we are writing a new chapter of conservation for the Willamette Valley – stepping up to meet the urgent demands at our doorstep and expanding our footprint to protect large landscapes before they are lost forever.

Alarm bells are blaring, calling our attention to diminishing species, wildfire and drought. Our vulnerability has never been so apparent.

Now is the time to act boldly, preserving the Valley's unique character, rare habitats, clean rivers and community trails.

In this call to action I find tremendous hope ... because of the investments and advocacy of people like YOU, Greenbelt is poised to meet this epic challenge. In 2022 we anticipate protecting more acres than any other single year before and I cannot wait to share the details of the delicious year ahead with you!

Greenbelt has a storied history of bold visions, and with your support we will carry this legacy forward to unveil a new era of wild possibility and audacious conservation.

Jessica McDonald, Executive Director
Greenbelt Land Trust

Volunteers on the Land

The legacy of Greenbelt is a legacy of volunteerism – our organization was founded by volunteers!

2021 was a huge success for our volunteer program. We hired Ingrid Thurow as our first full-time Volunteer Coordinator in May and we've been holding work parties ever since. It's been such a pleasure to invite our community back into the practice of tending land with us, getting our hands dirty!

This year volunteers collected several pounds of native plant seed, removed hundreds of feet of old fence, maintained five miles of trail, and all of that just in a few months once we started hosting public events again in the spring.

If the past two years have taught us anything, it's that building community and working together is especially important in times of crisis. Our hope is that volunteering is a joyful and grounding refuge for everyone. As we grow the volunteer program, consider joining a workday in the coming year - we need your help!

Trail Volunteers Get it Done

After completion of this year's work on the Mulkey Forest Thinning and Restoration project, there was still a lot of work to do to rehab impacted portions of the Mulkey Ridge trail before it was ready for hikers.

Community volunteers to the rescue! Crews from CSC YouthBuild and the Delta Chi fraternity at OSU moved branches and brush, contoured and raked the trail, and moved and spread several tons of gravel to get the trail in shape.

You'll see new views of Marys Peak and the valley, and new oak savanna and prairie openings along the trail on your next hike on Mulkey, and we'll be continuing to rehab parts of the trail in the spring.

VOLUNTEER OF THE YEAR

CHRIS BENTLEY

Chris Bentley wears many hats (artist, community planner, grandmother, botanical dyer, naturalist, jam cooker among many others), and Greenbelt has the excellent fortune of benefiting from her broad talents.

Among Chris' toolbox of passion projects is The Confluence, and for the last few years she has served as a volunteer leader for the project, shepherding the building's interior design forward. Countless hours (hundreds!) have been invested in creating an inspiring building that suits the needs of the organizations that will call the space home, and that captivates the community.

But, wait – there's more! Chris has also leant her botanical dye artistry talents to Greenbelt, leading workshops for the staff and for a lucky group of participants in 2021. Using natural materials, including leaves and flowers collected from Bald Hill Farm, Chris is always seeking new ways to connect people to the natural world around them.

For lending her head and heart to Greenbelt, we are honored to declare Chris as our Volunteer of the Year!

BUSINESS OF THE YEAR

CAPACITY BUILDING PARTNERSHIPS

"Start with the personal"

This was the sage guidance that Cliff Jones and his colleagues at Capacity Building Partnerships (CBP) gave to Greenbelt when we first started working with them in 2019. Eager to jump into discussions on organizational change and how we live our values around equity, diversity, and inclusion, we were raring to go! I'll admit that it was sometimes difficult to "start with the personal" – to press pause, step back, and spend time for every person at Greenbelt to learn from histories of inequity and define their own commitment to equity and justice.

Two years later and this journey of introspection and personal learning has led Greenbelt to new paths we could not have imagined possible.

In 2021 Greenbelt formally adopted a set up guiding principles to serve as touchstones for how we embed justice into our work. These guiding statements include Equity Goals, Framework, and a Lens through which we are learning to continually assess our actions against.

As Greenbelt walked (and stumbled at times!) through the last few years of what we call our 'equity journey', Capacity Building Partnerships and our consultant Cliff Jones was by our side – serving as coach, agitator, and friend. For their service to justice and nonprofits, we are delighted to award CPB with our Business of the Year!

AWARDS

CHARLES ROSS AWARD

ALAN AYRES

How best to describe Alan? Visionary, humble, and steadfast come to mind.

A member of Greenbelt Land Trust since the year of our inception in 1989, Alan was an 'early adopter' of our conservation vision, quietly supporting through regular annual membership. Then, in 2017 all that changed.

At a large community meeting to explore ideas for what a shared office building might look like for several conservation-minded organizations, Alan approached Jessica with an offer ... "I have a location downtown that I intend to build on, and I would love for it to be a building that serves as office and community space for organizations like Greenbelt." Yes, please!

Alan is one of the most visionary, hard-working, and community-minded persons I have ever met. Greenbelt is fortunate to be in his orbit!

- Jessica McDonald

Alan's incredible offer quickly became the blessing that The Confluence partners needed, transforming our loose collaboration into a formal partnership with a clear vision for co-housing our organizations.

And what a building it will be! Soon Corvallis will boast one of the most sustainably-designed buildings in the Pacific Northwest at The Confluence. Walk through the front doors and you will be awe-struck by the grand beauty, including locally-sourced timber beams and flooring - all of which have been installed (and often milled!) by Alan and his small crew.

Alan continually goes above and beyond ... for the building, for The Confluence partnership, and for our entire community. He is a humble hero and we are honored to call him a friend and long-time Greenbelt advocate.

Visionary leaders, empowering the protection and stewardship of our natural areas.
